

A Bachelor's in Business/Global Business Management will prepare you to interact in the business world on a global scale.

You will learn how to take business principles and integrate them across international boundaries. The coursework will address the concerns of international laws and regulations regarding business and trade, including issues of labor laws, tariffs, and currency. You will develop your knowledge of how technology, ethics, and culture affect marketing and trade. Your studies will also include introductions into business management, communications, marketing, and accounting principles. By completing the studies involved in this major, you will have a more complete understanding of how business is conducted on an international level. You will possess a greater sensitivity toward the business regulations and cultural practices of foreign countries, as well as a broader knowledge of how to utilize technology in conducting international business. This major will prepare you for: Education in this field allows you a host of opportunities on the international business level: international banking officer, international economist, cultural advisor, Import compliance specialist, international trade specialist, and working for the government in regulating trade. You can also pursue more specialized international business degrees to make yourself more marketable. Areas of possible further study include financial management, marketing, non-profit management, and numerous others. Being multi-lingual is often a significant plus. One should also expect a large amount of travel and/or long work days, depending on the position.

Schools That Offer Associate in Accounting

This program is designed for advanced practice nurses who hold a Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) degree and licensed as a Registered Nurses with at least one year of clinical experience.

Southern New Hampshire University is a private, nonprofit, accredited institution with more than 3,000 on campus students, over 170,000 online students, making it one of the fastest growing universities in the nation. Since its founding in 1932, the University has transformed from a school of accounting and secretarial science into an institution offering over 200 programs, from certificates to doctoral level degrees including business, education, liberal arts, social sciences and STEM.